Describe the most significant challenge you have faced and the steps you have taken to overcome this challenge	I believe the most challenging battle you could fight is the challenge of the mind. When you want something with every fiber of your being but your fear and insecurities drown you in their unrelenting criticism, slowly wearing you down until you are nothing. I believe my greatest enemy is my own self, I have been a victim of my own bullying. My insecurities have stopped me many times from achieving what I know I could achieve, and my streak of perfectionism makes it even worse. Many days I spent questioning my own worth, watching people accomplish feats that I know I could have achieved if I wasn't afraid. I have started meditations on self love and acceptance, spending 30 minutes a day quietly practicing my breathing and contemplating. Every morning I wake up determined to face this beast. Repeating to myself I am worthy and I will achieve my goals. Some days it is not easy. But every moment I'm still standing here, determined and patient, proving to the beast that I will not win.
You are required to spend the next year of your life in either the past or the future. What year would you travel and why?	I would love to go to the past, although I don't have a particular year in mind. I would really love to go to ancient Egypt, around 5th century BC, visit the library of Alexandria, marvel at the lost labyrinth of ancient Egypt, discover how they mummified corpses and marvel at all the architecture, advances, and culture humanity made before there was anything like technology. Our culture and society nowadays is so dependent on computers and the internet, and I would love to visit a world free from that.
What would you say is your greatest talent or skill? how have you developed and demonstrated that talent over time	I don't think I am particularly talented, but my greatest trait I believe is my relentless optimism, resourcefulness, and strength of self. You could throw me in the wilderness and I know I'll figure out how to make it out alive. I've developed this skill through experience, as well as educating myself through constantly reading, attending seminars regularly, and the disciplining myself through exercise and teaching myself patience through pottery.
What have you done to make your school or community a better place	My sense of responsibility towards my community is a driving force in my life, and even applying to the protégés. Every single day I feel guilty because I believe I am not doing enough. I ran and won for student council president in my junior year of high school, and as president, I led many student centered events, charity bake sales, as well as providing hygiene products that the school lacked in providing. As a citizen of a wonderful country, I volunteer at every possible opportunity, and I am in the process of joining Insnani, a volunteer team focused on humanitarian initiatives.
What makes you happy?	Nothing makes me happier than a sense of accomplishment. Hitting a new personal record in crossfit, creating the perfect vase, and learning a new skill. Learning something that I didn't know before fills me with a sense of excitement, I am but a curious child who is always at awe with the world, and getting to know it a little better always makes me happy. Spending time with my family never fails to make me truly happy, I feel good when I take care of my siblings, taking out my grandmother for a nice dinner, and going shopping with my mother. There is nothing better than reading a book so good that hours seem to disappear from your life, and the concept of space and time suddenly warp. You find yourself whisked away to wherever the author wanted your mind to wander, and you are happily away from the world for a few hours.
